Careers for Public Health Professionals are Growing...

Expanding Job Market

Careers in public health continue to grow, both domestically and internationally. Public health careers vary widely by location and job type, but generally focus on the prevention of injury and disease of individuals and communities, in addition to helping improve the performance of healthcare organizations.

Careers for global health professionals with technical expertise and a master's degree are in particularly high demand. According to a recent study published in 2018, 61% of job vacancies in the private or non-profit sector preferred candidates with a master's degree, and 40% of the vacancies were for technical or subject matter experts.¹

An MPH from Bryan University can fast-track you to success, giving you the accredited degree and technical expertise to become job-ready!

Gain Technical Skills Employers Need

In today's data-driven healthcare environment, graduates should be equipped with the right technology expertise, data analysis skills and tools, and leadership acumen. As a Bryan University MPH student, you'll build a solid foundation of knowledge from faculty who have real-world experience and you'll learn critical competencies that employers need, such as:

- Healthcare ecosystems and population health management
- Public health policy
- Designing effective public health intervention programs
- Social & behavioral public health
- Biostatistics for public health
- Environmental & occupational health
- Measuring the impact and improvement of population health programs
- Reporting and analyzing relational data
- Data-driven strategic decision support using cutting-edge technology
- Strong knowledge and experience in organizing, analyzing and reporting healthcare data using common database and data analysis tools
- Practical experience in applying healthcare data tools to real-world scenarios and case studies using the Health Informatics Simulation Laboratory (HISim Lab)

Real-World Experiences so You're Job Ready

Our proprietary HISim lab (Health Informatics Simulation lab) gives you practical experiences with real-world scenarios using the latest industry tools so you develop a skillset that is primed for career growth. Using this cutting-edge lab, you'll complete a Public Health Capstone Project, in which you'll apply your knowledge to solving healthcare challenges and problems using the tools and techniques learned in class.

A Learning Model to Help You Learn Faster & Retain More

Our dynamic experiential learning model (DeXL) contains cutting-edge curriculum combined with computer-based learning tools, allowing you to learn smarter and retain more. You'll receive a personalized learning experience, which includes:

- Individual coaching meetings with instructors when you want them, and instructors who reach out to you if they see you need help
- The flexibility to accelerate assignment due dates and select from a variety of assignment options to fit your schedule and learning style
- A mastery-based learning environment giving you the option to improve grades by re-taking assignments based upon instructor feedback
- Cutting-edge technologies such as an electronic textbook platform that identifies your current knowledge level and highlights only the information you need, saving you time and improving the learning experience
- Meaningful, interactive conversations with your peers and faculty
- Real-world experiences using simulated work environments
- Weekly live, interactive online events such as industry speakers, faculty coaching sessions, and helpful workshops that are all recorded in case you miss the event and need to watch it later

Connect with an Online Community to Expand Your Professional Network

At Bryan, we don't think learning online means learning alone. Connect with faculty, peers, and student support conveniently from your smart phone, tablet, or computer using Zoom, a user-friendly video app. You'll join a vibrant community who will provide support and celebrate your success along the way. You'll not only develop friends and colleagues, but you'll also build a professional network—for life.
